DOLF VAN DER LINDEN - AMBROSE - LAURIE JOHNSON

Table For Two

Music for a romantic evening is the theme of this collection which contains a mix of recordings by famous conductors such as Robert Farnon, George Melachrino, Charles Williams and Cyril Stapleton interspersed with recordings from the background music libraries that provided so much music for films, radio and television.

Well known composers such as Peter Dennis, Cyril Watters, Wally Stott and Bruce Campbell (responsible for the title track) wrote hundreds of pieces, sometimes for more than one library, always hoping that one of their compositions would be chosen as the signature tune of a radio or television programme, thus ensuring a regular income in the shape of royalties.

"Table For Two" was the last CD in the series to be compiled and annotated by David Ades before his death in February 2015. It, and the previous 126 collections, form a fitting memorial to his programming skills, his encyclopaedic knowledge of light music and the exhaustive research he carried out to ensure the accuracy of his definitive booklet notes.

Alan Bunting and Guild have decided that the series continues in a similar fashion. GLCD 5227

British Cinema And Theatre Orchestras - Vol. 4

With this fourth collection of Cinema & Theatre Orchestras we are again back in the 1930s and 40s, when virtually every theatre and many cinemas in Britain boasted their own resident orchestra. Not surprisingly, the best of these were to be found in London and nine of them appear on this CD.

Many recordings featured not only the cinema or theatre's orchestra but its organ as well and you can hear examples recorded in The Commodore Theatre, The Paramount and Regal Cinemas plus one featuring the organ which was briefly installed in The London Palladium. De Groot and his superb New Victoria Orchestra appear on Guild for the first time but the highlight of the collection is a rare 1930 recording, never released in Britain, of a selection from "Les Saltimbanques" played by The Regal Cinema Orchestra with Quentin Maclean at the organ.
